U.S. Calls for More Oil Train Inspections, Other Safety Measures

(Reuters) Oil train operators must have detailed information on hand about the possible risks of their cargo in case of an accident and perform more thorough checks before moving on the tracks, U.S. transportation officials said on Friday. U.S. officials have been wrestling with how to make oil train deliveries safer ever since a runaway shipment derailed in Lac Megantic, Canada, in 2013 and killed 47 people. In March there was an oil train accident in Galena, Illinois, although it did not lead to an injury. A national oil train safety plan is due in coming weeks that will demand tougher tank cars and other improvements. New measures announced Friday are meant to reduce the chance that a routine train mishap would lead to the kind of fiery explosion that followed several other oil train accidents, officials said. The measures were announced jointly by the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA) and the Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration (PHMSA).

Afghanistan Suicide Bomb in Jalalabad Leaves Many Dead

(BBC News) At least 33 people have been killed and 100 injured in a suicide bomb attack in the eastern Afghan city of Jalalabad. The blast happened outside a bank where government staff and military personnel were collecting their salaries, the region's police chief said. No group has said it carried out the attack, and a spokesman for the Taliban said it was not involved. The BBC's Shahzheb Jillani in Kabul says it is the largest attack in Jalalabad in many months. Afghanistan's President, Ashraf Ghani, called it a "cowardly and heinous terrorist act". Police said another bomb was discovered nearby, and was destroyed in a controlled explosion. Another blast was also reported outside a shrine in Jalalabad on Saturday morning. There are no reported casualties. The city has been a repeated target for the Taliban in the last year.

Australia Arrests 5 on Charges of Plotting ANZAC Day Attack

(AP) Five Australian teenagers were arrested Saturday on suspicion of plotting a terrorist attack at a Veterans' Day ceremony that included targeting police officers, officials said. The suspects included two 18-year-olds who are alleged to have been preparing an attack at the ANZAC Day ceremony in Melbourne, Australian Federal Police Acting Deputy Commissioner Neil Gaughan told reporters. Another 18-year-old was arrested on weapons charges and two other men, aged 18 and 19, were in custody and assisting police, police said. ANZAC stands for the Australian and New Zealand Army Corps and commemorates the World War I battle in Turkey on April 25. The arrests took place in Melbourne, where a joint counterterrorism team served a total of seven warrants Saturday morning. Police said they were conducting searches at properties.

SITUATION SUMMARY

Weather of Concern

- A deep trough of low pressure will cover California Wednesday through Friday of next week. This will bring a significant pattern change. Showers could develop as early as Wednesday, then increase Thursday and continue Friday. There is a slight chance of thunderstorms with brief heavy rain and some hail possible Thursday and Friday. It will be unseasonably chilly with snow levels below 5000 feet at times.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

High pressure over the West Coast will maintain warm weather across the interior through the weekend. The coast can expect low clouds, mainly during the night and morning hours.

Medford Weather:

Unusually warm and dry weather will continue over the forecast area this weekend. On Sunday, an upper ridge will build over the region and this will likely be the hottest day of the week. Monday will also be quite warm with possible showers or thunderstorms over the mountains. On Tuesday, there will be storms over the mountains and it will also be possible everywhere inland from the coast. From Wednesday through the end of the week, showery and cool weather is expected.

Reno Weather:

Warm afternoon temperatures will persist through early next week. Isolated afternoon showers, and possibly a few thunderstorms, will develop over the Sierra this weekend. Low pressure will move into eastern California and western Nevada by the middle of next week with increasing chances for precipitation and cooler temperatures.

San Francisco Weather:

High pressure across much of the West Coast will maintain above average inland temperatures with cooler conditions near the coast. Conditions cool region-wide early in the week with unsettled weather possible mid/late week as upper level troughing develops off the West Coast.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

The forecast area will have a very warm weekend with temperatures in the 80s cooling to around 70 by midweek next week. Slight chance of mountain showers this weekend. The weather will be cloudy with a chance of showers everywhere starting early next week. The storm will be not very strong so precipitation amounts are not expected to be significant.

Hanford Weather:

An upper level area of high pressure is producing dry conditions and above average temperatures through the weekend for the valley and foothills. A threat of thunderstorms does exist along the crest of the Sierra Nevada Sunday through Tuesday. An upper level area of low pressure moves south along the coast Wednesday through Friday. This will bring a threat of showers and thunderstorms to the entire central California interior beginning Wednesday and ending Saturday.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Expect a modest cooling trend through Monday, with more significant cooling early next week across southwestern California over the next several days as onshore flow increases and brings night through morning low clouds back to the coast and some coastal valleys through at least midweek. There will be a slight chance for thunderstorms across some local mountain areas early next week. Another upper low will bring a more widespread chance for showers by midweek. An isolated thunderstorm can't be ruled out as well with this upper low.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

A weak low pressure system will develop in the vicinity of Southern California through early next week bringing stronger onshore flow with a cooling trend, deepening of the marine layer with a return of night and morning coastal low clouds and fog, and gusty west winds in the mountains and deserts. For Wednesday and Thursday, a colder low pressure system from the northwest will move into Southern California bringing continued cooling and a chance of showers. Another low pressure system from the northwest is possible for next Friday and Saturday which would continue the chances for showers.

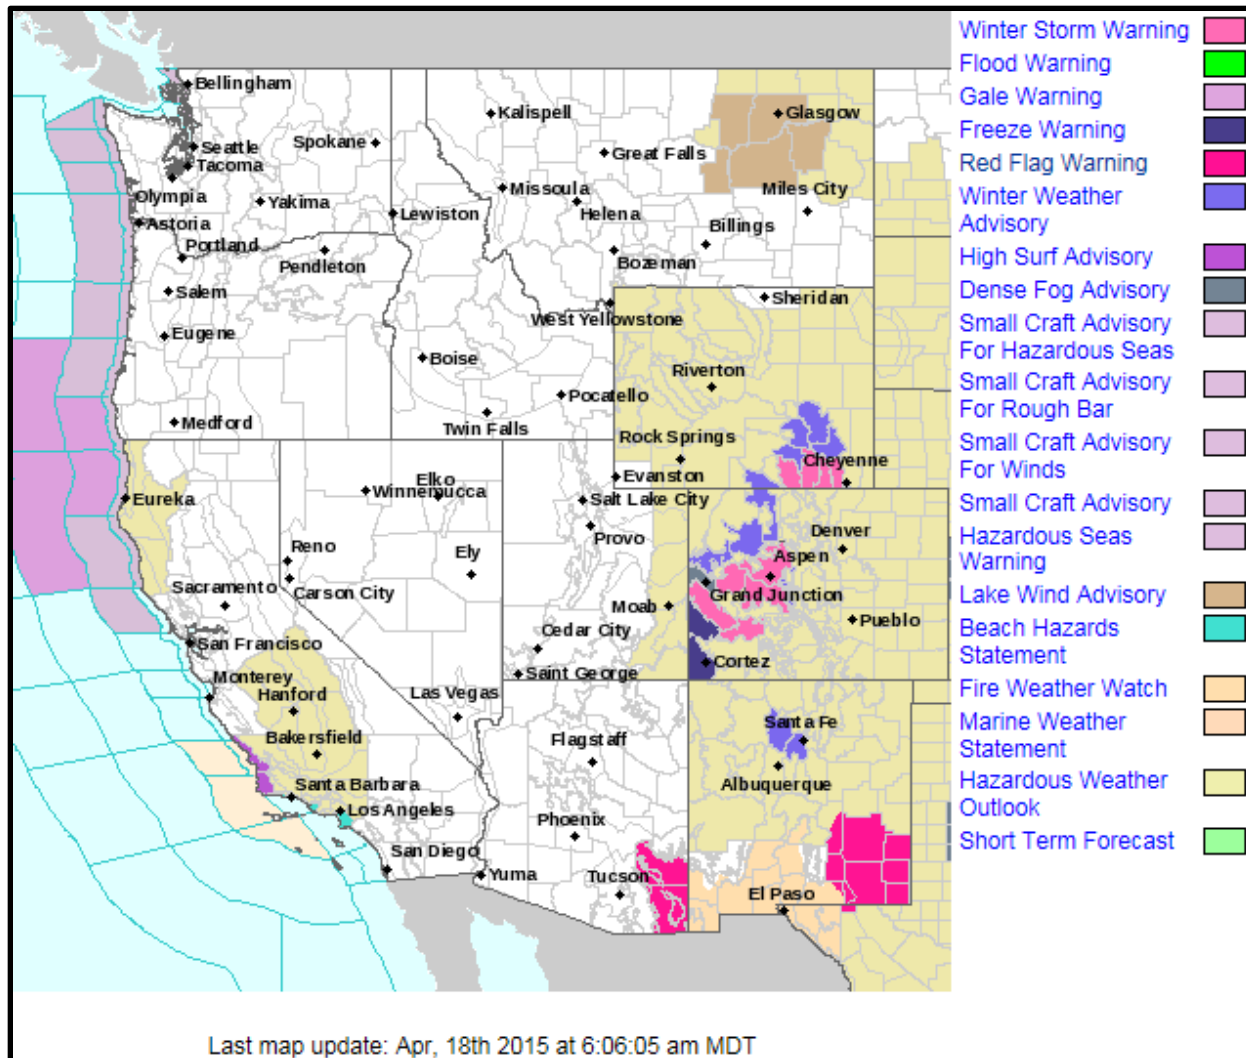

Southeast California Weather:

Mostly clear skies and warming temperatures are expected today through the remainder of the weekend. High temperatures in the Lower Deserts will climb back above 90 by this afternoon. Dry and warm weather will persist into the middle of next week. Big changes are possible Wednesday into Friday as an approaching storm system brings cooler temperatures and a slight chance of showers into the region.
